Eastbrook School

Dear Parent/Carer,

We have been very proud of Year 11 whilst they have been sitting their final GCSE exams this season, the resilience and determination they have shown in revising towards their exams has been impressive. We know students have found it useful when we have dropped the usual timetable lessons on particular days to give students additional intense revision towards upcoming exams, for example we dropped the Year 11 Maths lesson the day before the big English paper on 24th May last term, which made the children feel really well equipped to face their final Literature paper. As we now near the final few exams and where most subject exams are now over or only one paper remaining per subject in some cases, both parents and students have asked can students revise at home. So as of Monday 12th June all year 11 will be on study leave.

Please get in touch with the school if you need to discuss this further, in particular parents/carers of vulnerable children.

Some teachers may however get in touch directly with parents/students to put on a few special revision classes when they would have ordinarily had students on their timetable. If that is the case, then you will receive either a text in advance or a call, and a list will be left with the reception so we know to expect your child in school at the said times and in full school uniform. Staff will continue to put on revision work via Show My Homework.

All students must attend exams, if your child will need a reprint of their exam timetable, please get in touch with me through the school office.

Yours faithfully

A Khan
Deputy Headteacher
